

داستان کوتاه

درس بیست و سوم

+تحلیل کلمه به کلمه

کلمات و گرامر

سطح B1-B2

website: englishnerd.club

Helen lived with her sister Mary.
Both of them were about 75 years
old, and neither of them had ever married.

Helen lived with her sister Mary.
Both of them were about 75 years
old, and neither of them had ever
married.

both of them/us/you

Both of us were very tired.

neither of them/us/you

I asked two people the way to the station but neither of them knew.

either of them/us/you

Can either of you speak English?

They had a small, old car, and when they wanted to go somewhere, which they did very rarely, Mary always drove, because her eyes were better.

They had a small, old car, and when they wanted to go somewhere, which they did very rarely, Mary always drove, because her eyes were better.

One weekend they drove to a large town to look at some things which they had read about in the newspaper. Neither of them had been to that town before.

One weekend they drove to a large town to look at some things which they had read about in the newspaper. Neither of them had been to that town before.

Have/has/had been to a place

Have you been to France?

No, I haven't

Has he ever been to Sydney?

No, he has never been there.

They were driving along in a lot of traffic when they turned right into a street which cars were not allowed to go into.

They were driving along in a lot of traffic when they turned right into a street which cars were not allowed to go into.

to be (not) allowed to do sth

Smoking is not allowed here.

You're allowed to enter the building if you show your ID card.

Are dictionaries allowed in the exam?

There was a policeman there, and he blew his whistle, but Mary did not stop, so he got on to his motorcycle and followed them.

There was a policeman there, and he blew his whistle, but Mary did not stop, so he got on to his motorcycle and followed them.

After he had ordered them to stop, he said, 'didn't you hear me blow my whistle?'

After he had ordered them to stop, he said, 'didn't you hear me blow my whistle?'

‘Yes, we did,’ admitted Mary politely, ‘but mommy told us never to stop when men whistle at us.’

‘Yes, we did,’ admitted Mary politely, ‘but mommy told us never to stop when men whistle at us.’

told us never to stop

tell sb (not) to do sth

The teacher told the children to sit quietly.

I thought I told you not to touch anything.

at any time

big confess get husbands

mother

not rudely

Saturday or

Sunday

seldom tell go after

Review + audio

t.me/englishnerd\_ir

Helen lived with her sister Mary.
Both of them were about 75 years
old, and neither of them had ever
married.

They had a small, old car, and when they wanted to go somewhere, which they did very rarely, Mary always drove, because her eyes were better.

One weekend they drove to a large town to look at some things which they had read about in the newspaper. Neither of them had been to that town before.

They were driving along in a lot of traffic when they turned right into a street which cars were not allowed to go into.

There was a policeman there, and he blew his whistle, but Mary did not stop, so he got on to his motorcycle and followed them.

After he had ordered them to stop, he said, 'didn't you hear me blow my whistle?'

‘Yes, we did,’ admitted Mary politely, ‘but mommy told us never to stop when men whistle at us.’

