

داستان کوتاه

گرامر و لغات

Intermediate

Mr. Jones bought some things from a big shop last month, and when he got the bill a few days ago, he thought that there was a mistake in it, so he telephoned the shop and asked to speak to the accounts department.

Mr. Jones bought some things from a big shop last month, and when he got the bill a few days ago, he thought that there was a mistake in it, so he telephoned the shop and asked to speak to the accounts department.

Mr. Jones bought some things from a big shop last month, and when he got the bill a few days ago, he thought that there was a mistake in it, so he telephoned ed the shop and asked ed to speak to the accounts department.

'Who do you want to speak to in the accounts department?' The telephone operator asked. 'It doesn't matter to me,' Mr. Jones answered. He did not know the names of any of the people who worked there.

'Who do you want to speak to in the accounts department?' The telephone operator asked. 'It doesn't matter to me,' Mr. Jones answered. He did not know the names of any of the people who worked there.

Who do you want to speak to?

Julia saw Kevin.

Who saw Kevin. Julia. (Subject)

Who did Julia see? Kevin. (Object)

Whom did Julia see? (Object)

Who lives in this house?

~~Who does live?~~

Who saw the accident?

~~Who did see?~~

Who (whom) did you meet yesterday? (you met somebody)

Who met you? (somebody met you)

Eric likes oranges.

Who likes oranges? Eric.

What does Eric like? Oranges.

Emily won a new car.

Who won a new car? Emily.

What did Emily win? A new car.

Who do you want to speak to?

Whom do you want to speak to?

You want to speak to someone.

He heard nothing for a few seconds and then the operator said, 'hello, you wanted to speak to someone in the accounts department, didn't you?

He heard nothing for a few seconds and then the operator said, 'hello, you wanted to speak to someone in the accounts department, didn't you?

‘Yes, that's right,’ Mr. Jones answered.

‘Would you like to speak to Mr. Hankinson?’ The operator said.

‘Yes, that'll be alright, ’Mr. Jones said patiently. ‘It doesn't matter who I speak to.’

‘Yes, that's right,’ Mr. Jones answered.

‘Would you like to speak to Mr. Hankinson?’ The operator said.

‘Yes, that'll be alright,’ Mr. Jones said patiently. ‘It doesn't matter who I speak to.’

It doesn't matter who I speak to.

It doesn't matter who/why/what ...

It doesn't matter what you wear.

Does it matter what I think?

It doesn't matter where we go.

'I'm sorry, 'the operator answered,' but Mr. Hankinson isn't in today.'

Review + audio

t.me/englishnerd_ir

Mr. Jones bought some things from a big shop last month, and when he got the bill a few days ago, he thought that there was a mistake in it, so he telephoned the shop and asked to speak to the accounts department.

'Who do you want to speak to in the accounts department?' The telephone operator asked. 'It doesn't matter to me,' Mr. Jones answered. He did not know the names of any of the people who worked there.

He heard nothing for a few seconds and then the operator said, 'hello, you wanted to speak to someone in the accounts department, didn't you?

‘Yes, that's right,’ Mr. Jones answered.

‘Would you like to speak to Mr. Hankinson?’ The operator said.

‘Yes, that'll be alright, ’Mr. Jones said patiently. ‘It doesn't matter who I speak to.’

'I'm sorry, 'the operator answered,' but Mr. Hankinson isn't in today.'

