

داستان کوتاه

درس ۳۹

+تحلیل کلمه به کلمه
کلمات و گرامر

website: englishnerd.club

George Banks was a clever journalist. He worked for a good newspaper, and he liked arguing very much. He argued with anybody, and about anything.

George Banks was a clever journalist. He worked for a good newspaper, and he liked arguing very much. He argued with anybody, and about anything.

George Banks was a clever journalist. He worked for a good newspaper, and he liked arguing very much. He argued with anybody, and about anything.

Sometimes the people whom he argued with were as clever as he was, but often they were not.

Sometimes the people whom he argued with were as clever as he was, but often they were not.

as adjective as

She is 93.

He is 96.

She is old, but she is not as old as he is.

as adjective as

Box B is bigger than box A.

Box A is not as big as Box B.

Box A and B are the same size.

Box A is as big as Box B.

as adjective as

Rome is not as old as Athens.

(Athens is older)

The weather is better than it was yesterday. It isn't as cold as it was yesterday.

Sometimes the people whom he argued with were as clever as he was, but often they were not.

He did not mind arguing with stupid people at all. He knew that he could never persuade them to agree, because they could never really understand what he was saying;

He did not mind arguing with stupid people at all. He knew that he could never persuade them to agree, because they could never really understand what he was saying;

He did not mind arguing with stupid people at all. He knew that he could never persuade them to agree, because they could never really understand what he was saying;

and the stupider they were, the surer they were that they were right; but he often found that stupid people said very amusing things.

and the stupider they were, the surer they were that they were right; but he often found that stupid people said very amusing things.

At the end of one argument which George had with one of these less clever people, the man said something which George has always remembered and which has always amused him.

At the end of one argument which George had with one of these less clever people, the man said something which George has always remembered and which has always amused him.

It was, 'Well, sir, you should never forget this: there are always three answers to every question: your answer, my answer, and the correct answer.'

It was, 'Well, sir, you should never forget this: there are always three answers to every question: your answer, my answer, and the correct answer.'

1. correct

2. funny

3. intelligent

4. less doubtful

5. make sb laugh

6. make sb believe

7. ought to

8. person who writes for a newspaper

9. talking against other people

Review + audio

t.me/englishnerd_ir

George Banks was a clever journalist. He worked for a good newspaper, and he liked arguing very much. He argued with anybody, and about anything.

Sometimes the people whom he argued with were as clever as he was, but often they were not.

He did not mind arguing with stupid people at all. He knew that he could never persuade them to agree, because they could never really understand what he was saying;

and the stupider they were, the surer they were that they were right; but he often found that stupid people said very amusing things.

At the end of one argument which George had with one of these less clever people, the man said something which George has always remembered and which has always amused him.

It was, 'Well, sir, you should never forget this: there are always three answers to every question: your answer, my answer, and the correct answer.'

